Children at St Clement

The ones who have visible stones as of 2014 are a little further down starting on page 10,006.

There are many more children buried at St Clement Cemetery than stones now show.

There are yet hundreds more children at St Clement, Warren Union and most of the other cemeteries containing burials prior to World War Two. Record keeping and death registration prior to this was often not done. Prior to the 1930s in the USA there were many deaths caused by diseases we now have cures or prevention for. There were more child deaths than adult deaths and often there more than twice as many child deaths as adult deaths. Sometimes families did not have money for a cemetery plot or there were no nearby cemeteries. Remember the corpse staid in the home until buried. Most of the time the burial happened the same or very next day. There were few if any funeral homes. People did not like the odors that arose soon after a death nor did they like spending the night with a corpse in the house. Graves were hand dug with a pick and shovel by a family member, friend or neighbor. In bad weather, rain, snow, frost or due to hard soil the grave often was not 6 feet at the botom. Sometimes if the family was poor a baby or stillborn was buried at dusk or dawn in the semi darkness somewhere unofficial and unrecorded. Remember this area was rural farms not village or city. The Cemetery was often overgrown with trees, shrubs vines and tall weeds which made it easy to bury a baby without the public being aware of it. Think about it. If you did not have money for a cemetery lot, or to pay someone to dig the grave and the corpse was in your home would you not want to get it buried quickly and without waiting to obtain a grave lot in some cemetery and wait for the township council to meet once a month and perhaps approve a township burial or deny it and send the request to the county board. Meanwhile the corpse is in your home without any embalming and getting ripper and smellier. Don't think private confidential burials did not happen.

St Clement Cemetery

From 1861-1897 there were 15-20 child burials for every 10 adults average.

And these are just the ones that made the record book.
There were actually more.

Only about 174 children are marked on stones as of Jan 1 2015.

Here are the children there are visible stones for: (some possibles are also listed and research will continue as I get time.) Also included are some who died young. Note that there are hundreds more children buried in this cemetery who have no engraved marker.

DISEASES in 1800s

Consumption is an old name for tuberculosis (TB) that describes how the illness wastes away or consumes its victims. TB is "an ancient enemy" that has plagued humankind for more than five thousand years. The Greeks called it phthisis, and Hippocrates advised his medical students against treating it, because it was almost always deadly, and a dead patient was bad for business. Caused by a highly contagious bacterial infection, TB is blamed for 20% of the deaths in 17th-century London and 30% of those in 19th-century Paris (as depicted in Moulin Rouge). In those days, the disease proved deadly for about 80% of its victims. It's estimated that TB has killed over 1 billion people in the last two centuries. In the past, patients were usually sent to a sanatorium, where a healthy climate (fresh air) and good nutrition were believed to combat the infection. Later, pneumothorax was used, a treatment that collapses the lung then allows it to heal. In the 1940s, advances in science led to the development of several drugs that proved effective against TB. The incidence of the disease began to drop, and it was believed that TB would be extinct by 2010. Unfortunately, TB is far from being a disease of the past. An effective course of drug therapy lasts 6-8 months, and many patients discontinue the antibiotics before completing the whole regimen. To make matters worse, the TB strain continues to mutate and evolve, becoming more and more drug-resistant. And poverty and the AIDS epidemic, which weakens the immune system making it ripe for attack, have also helped lead to a resurgence of the disease. Every year, about 8 million people contract TB and 3 million die from it.

Diphtheria (Greek διφθέρια (diphthera) "pair of leather scrolls") is an upper respiratory tract illness caused by Corynebacterium diphtheriae, a facultative anaerobic Gram-positive bacterium.[1][2] It is characterized by sore throat, low fever, and an adherent membrane (a pseudomembrane) on the tonsils, pharynx, and/or nasal cavity.[3] A milder form of diphtheria can be restricted to the skin. Uncommon consequences include myocarditis (about 20% of cases) [4] and peripheral neuropathy (about 10% of cases).[5] Diphtheria is a contagious disease spread by direct physical contact or breathing the aerosolized secretions of infected individuals. Historically quite common, diphtheria has largely been eradicated in industrialized nations through widespread vaccination. In the United States for example, there were 52 reported cases of diphtheria between 1980 and 2000; between 2000 and 2007 there were only three cases[6] as the DPT (Diphtheria–Pertussis–Tetanus) vaccine is recommended for all school-age children. Boosters of the vaccine are recommended for adults since the benefits of the vaccine decrease with age without constant re-exposure; they are particularly recommended for those traveling to areas where the disease has not been eradicated.

Scarlet fever is a term used for strep throat with a rash. Scarlet fever is most common in children ages 2 to 10, but it can affect people of any age. Scarlet fever is caused by streptococcal (strep) bacteria, the same bacteria that cause strep throat. There are many different strains of strep bacteria, some of which cause more serious illness than others. The type of strep that infects the throat and causes scarlet fever is called group A beta-hemolytic streptococcus (GABS). It is characterized by: Sore throat Fever Bright red tongue with a "strawberry" appearance Characteristic rash, which: is fine, red, and rough-textured; it blanches upon pressure. appears 12–48 hours after the fever. generally starts on the chest, armpits, and behind the ears. spares the face (although some circumoral pallor is characteristic). is worse in the skin folds. These Pastia lines (where the rash runs together in the armpits and groin) appear and can persist after the rash is gone. may spread to cover the uvula. The rash begins to fade three to four days after onset and desquamation (peeling) begins. "This phase begins with flakes peeling from the face. Peeling from the palms and around the fingers occurs about a week later." [3] Peeling also occurs in axilla, groin, and tips of the fingers and toes. [4] Diagnosis of scarlet fever is clinical. The blood test shows marked leukocytosis with neutrophilia and conserved or increased eosinophils, high erythrocyte sedimentation rate (ESR) and C-reactive protein (CRP), and elevation of antistreptolysin O titer. Blood culture is rarely positive, but the streptococci can usually be demonstrated in throat culture. The complications of scarlet fever include septic complications due to spread of streptococcus in blood and immune-mediated complications due to an aberrant immune response. Septic complications -- today rare -- include ear and sinus infection, streptococcal pneumonia, empyema thoracis, meningitis and full-blown sepsis, upon which the condition may be called malignant scarlet fever. Immune complications include acute glomerulonephritis, rheumatic fever and erythema nodosum. The secondary scarlatinous disease, or secondary malignant syndrome of scarlet fever, includes renewed fever, renewed angina, septic ear, nose, and throat complications and kidney infection or rheumatic fever and is seen around the eighteenth day of untreated scarlet fever.

Typhoid fever, also known as typhoid, is a common worldwide illness, transmitted by the ingestion of food or water contaminated with the feces of an infected person, which contain the bacterium Salmonella enterica enterica, serovar Typhi. The bacteria then perforate through the intestinal wall and are phagocytosed by macrophages. Typhoid fever is characterized by a slowly progressive fever as high as 40 °C (104 °F), profuse sweating and gastroenteritis. Less commonly, a rash of flat, rose-colored spots may appear. Classically, the course of untreated typhoid fever is divided into four individual stages, each lasting approximately one week. In the first week, there is a slowly rising temperature with relative bradycardia, malaise, headache and cough. A bloody nose (epistaxis) is seen in a quarter of cases and abdominal pain is also possible.

Summer complaint Diarrhea, usually in infants caused by spoiled milk weaning brash, water gripes, choleric fever of children, cholera morbus. acute gastroenteritis

Cholera infantum: A common, noncontagious diarrhea of young children, occurring in summer or autumn. It was common among the poor and in hand-fed babies. Death frequently occurred in three to five days. Synonyms: summer complaint, weaning brash, water gripes, choleric fever of children, cholera morbus. acute gastroenteritis

The following is a list of diseases commonly cited in historic obituaries and death certificates and their present day equivalents.

A few Historic Diseases with Modern description

Ague Malarial Fever very common and no medicine available that worked

American plague Yellow fever

Aphtha The infant disease "thrush"

Apoplexy Paralysis due to stroke

Asphyxia/Asphixia Cyanotic and lack of oxygen

Atrophy Wasting away or diminishing in size.

Bilious fever Typhoid, malaria, hepatitis or elevated temperature and bile emesis

Black fever Acute infection with high temperature and dark red skin lesions and high mortality rate

Black plague or death Bubonic plague

Blood poisoning Bacterial infection; septicemia

Brain fever Meningitis

Bright's disease Chronic inflammatory disease of kidneys

Camp fever Typhus; aka Camp diarrhea

Canine madness Rabies, hydrophobia

Canker Ulceration of mouth or lips or herpes simplex

Child bed fever Infection following birth of a child No antibiotics were known yet

Chin cough Whooping cough

Cholera Acute severe contagious diarrhea with intestinal lining sloughing

Cholera morbus Characterized by nausea, vomiting, abdominal cramps, elevated temperature, etc.

Could be appendicitis

Chorea Disease characterized by convulsions, contortions and dancing

Cold plague Ague which is characterized by chills

Colic An abdominal pain and cramping

Congestion Any collection of fluid in an organ, like the lungs

Consumption Tuberculosis

Croup Laryngitis, diphtheria, or strep throat

Diphtheria Contagious disease of the throat

Dropsy Edema (swelling), often caused by kidney or heart disease

Dropsy of the Brain Encephalitis

Dysentery Inflammation of colon with frequent passage of mucous and blood

Encephalitis Swelling of brain; aka sleeping sickness

Enteric fever Typhoid fever

Falling sickness Epilepsy

Grippe/grip Influenza like symptoms

Grocer's itch Skin disease caused by mites in sugar or flour

Heat stroke Body temperature elevates because of surrounding environment temperature and body does not perspire to reduce temperature. Coma and death result if not reversed

Hydrophobia Rabies

Jaundice Condition caused by blockage of intestines

Lagrippe Influenza

Lockjaw Tetanus or infectious disease affecting the muscles of the neck and jaw. Untreated, it is fatal in 8 days

Milk fever Disease from drinking contaminated milk, like undulant fever or brucellosis

Plague An acute febrile highly infectious disease with a high fatality rate

Pleurisy Any pain in the chest area with each breath

Rheumatism Any disorder associated with pain in joints

Rickets Disease of skeletal system

Scarlet fever A disease characterized by red rash

Small pox Contagious disease with fever and blisters

Sore throat distemper Diphtheria or quinsy

St. Anthony's fire Also erysipelas, but named so because of affected skin areas are bright red in appearance

St. Vitas dance Ceaseless occurrence of rapid complex jerking movements performed involuntary Summer complaint Diarrhea, usually more in infants caused by spoiled milk however many adults died of this also. Remember they did not have any medicine for this..

Sunstroke Uncontrolled elevation of body temperature due to environment heat. Lack of sodium in the body is a predisposing cause

Tetanus Infectious fever characterized by high fever, headache and dizziness

Tussis convulsiva Whooping cough

Typhus Infectious fever characterized high fever, headache, and dizziness

Womb fever Infection of the uterus

Worm fit Convulsions associated with teething, worms, elevated temperature or diarrhea people got worms just like dogs in the old days. There was more than one kind of worm also.

Yellowjacket Yellow fever.

Warren Township deaths 1867-1900 showed the following causes listed by frequency

HOWEVER NOTE THAT THESE ARE ONLY THE ONES RECORDED WHICH IS MUCH LESS THAN THE ACTUAL COUNT WHICH IS UNKNOWN

ALSO THIS SHOULD ONLY BE CONSIDERED AS A ROUGH INDICATION OF FREQUENCY OF THE LISTED CAUSE.

Before 1900 most doctors were untrained and most medicines non existent or useless.

After 1900 the numbers of child deaths gradually declined and deaths from the following diseases also gradually declined: Diphtheria, summer complaint, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, inflammation, dropsy, bright disease, dropsy, dysentery, cholera, infantium, grip, croup, small pox, fits, childbirth, confinement, measles, blood poisoning, malaria, whooping cough, convulsions, scarletina and deaths caused by horses.

Other causes increased such as “killed by cars”, auto accidents, airplane accidents, and deaths caused by pollution and cancer.

Today the leading causes of death are: Heart disease: Cancer: Stroke (cerebrovascular diseases): Chronic lower respiratory diseases: Accidents (unintentional injuries): Alzheimer's disease: Diabetes: Influenza and Pneumonia: Nephritis, nephrotic syndrome, and nephrosis: Septicemia: [and war] above from <http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/fastats/lcod.htm>

How deep were they buried?

Even now even states differ Florida minimum is 12 inches but this can be waved by next of kin. Many states use the six foot standard some states are less and private cemeteries also vary. Was that enforced? Well in the 1850s the family itself had to dig the grave or hire someone. If the body had an infectious disease or the family was ill or weak or if the ground was frozen or if it was pouring rain all of that influenced how deep the grave was dug. More than one person including a sexton informed me to be careful in digging around in cemeteries because in a few cases the remains were not far below the surface. Babies and stillborns were often not buried at six feet even today. So to answer the question of how deep are the remains the answer is we don't know and I am not gong to dig to find out. Let them rest in peace. This is why I objected to Warren hysterical society's new rule that all foundations must be 42 inches deep over at Warren Union Cemetary. This could easily put a contractors machine digger into remains. They brushed me off saying suddenly that it would be handled by the committee. What committee? Who appointed them grave police? Who do they think they are to tell a family that they can't put a marker, epitaph or name brick on a family plot that is a hundred years old and have to hire a contractor to dig down 42 inches and aerate the concrete. They are insisting on this but ignore stones seriously tilting that can kill children or hurt people.

Here at St Clement Erin Rorick the sexton does an excellent job in digging the graves to the full depth of usually about six feet with cremations about two feet.

Are there persons buried at St Clements who do not have stones visible?

The answer is a resounding Yes!

Researchers who have studied this cemetery and other older Michigan cemeteries have found that there are often many more persons buried than there are stones. Millar Cemetery over on 16 Mile has only 54 head stones yet I have been told there are probably over 100 burials there if not more. At another location Archeologist Scott Akridge was amazed when he visited a local cemetery in 2004. "As many as 200 graves are located here," he said, although only six headstones exist. Most of the 180 cemeteries in the county have numerous graves that are unmarked or marked only with unscribed field stones. Many military veterans lie in these spaces." (<http://www.argenweb.net/white/cems>) And there are thousands of Civil War soldiers in unmarked graves. (I have identified a few that may be in Warren Union Cemetery.) And many thousands more babies and children in unmarked graves around our country. Every one of you have hundreds of relatives in unmarked graves. You doubt me. OK Where are your great great grandparents uncles aunts and cousins buried?

After looking at my and others research it is discovered that St Slement and Warren Union Cemeteries may have hundreds of more burials than stones now show. As far as Warren Union Consider that the original 18-20 families who had lots 10 feet by 30 most did not place stones. That is around 200-400 burials, of which only just about 50 now have stones. This was not considered at all when the uninformed social club that is called the Warren Historical Society chose words for the historical plaque. St Clement was funded not much later than Warren Union and the same cultural norms apply except with that of Catholic practices added. Records although much better are still sketchy and researchers can see that it is very likely that many burials were not recorded. Remember St Clement had visiting pastors for awile. Also many years and pages of records either wwere not kept or lost. Also consider that in the early days this cemetery was expanded many times as lots were sold and were used and the area was filled up. Consider again that many additional families bought lots but did not place stones when someone died. And consider that many babies died at birth or shortly thereafter and were buried in the back or on top of other burials. This fact has been totally ignored. Where do they think people buried them if not in this the local cemetery?

And in those days most had big families and they usually filled up their lots and had to buy additional lots here and elsewhere (We have proof of that from several sources. See what Dorothy Cummings stated her family had to buy additional plots to bury family because Warren Union Cemetery was filled up and no plots were any longer available. And her family is one of the ones who had sold property to expand the cemetery and that was soon filled up. At St Clement it has been told to me by more than one old timer that the cemetery was considered full. When St Clement cemetery became an overgrown jungle it was closed and even though families had lots they were tjold to use other cemeteries such as Mt Olivet. It is not beyond possibility that families might have buried loved ones particularly children in their lots as they thought it was their right and their property without telling the pastor who was the one who kept the record.

There were many deaths from many diseases we now have cures for which killed many babies, children and adults. Sometimes there were multiple deaths of children in the same family and died within days of each other and were placed in the same grave. And no marker ever put there.

Remember that there were no funeral homes and that the corpse remained in the family home until burial.

Burial was carried out quickly before WWII. I have diaries from those days that often show a person died and was most often buried the next day. Families did not want a body even of a loved one in the home for long particularly if they had died of an unknown cause. There were fears that what killed the corpse would kill others. Fluids would leak out of the corpse and there were often terrible odors. Within as little as four hours after death decomposition in different body areas may cause tissue gas to form from the bacteria Clostridium perfringens. This is particularly true if a contaminate is present such as vomit, feces, a wound, sores, inflammation, gangrene, etc. The result is a skunk like odor and gasses released. If the house is heated in the winter or if it is summer this is compounded. Decomposition in a part of a corpse can in just a few hours spread to other parts of the body thru fluids and bacteria in the corpse. And ask anyone who has slept with a corpse in the next room spooky to be sure and terrifying to children and some adults. There were no funeral homes and no refrigeration or embalming. So in the old days corpse was buried sometimes the same day or the next day and as soon as a grave could be dug which was by hand using pick and shovel. Church services were held as soon as possible.

Sometimes in the family members and diggers were weak or due to rain, snow, frost, cold or other problems the grave may not have been dug deeply in the old days before undertakers and machinery. In the old days in rural America, which is what Warren Township was, families buried their own with just a shovel and sometimes with just a shroud. And those who think that every burial was in a six foot deep 3 foot by 6 foot hole should try digging one to understand the magnitude of the work involved in doing that by hand with only a shovel. Even those who have dug a grave for a family dog in the back yard can attest to the work involved. It was many hours of very hard work. Now days grave heaters thaw the ground in the winter and mechanical diggers do the work in a short time regardless of the weather. Pumps can even pump out the water in the hole. When I placed a stone in a family plot on another cemetery the sexton warned me to be careful digging even for a shallow foundation for the stone as he stated he discovered that sometimes old graves were not dug very deep. With the wooden casket rotted away human bones were all that is left and as a hand shovel planted them there a hand shovel sometimes unintentionally disturbs them many years later. In the back bones were discovered but no one bothered to investigate. Quite some time ago a skull was found exposed there. The fact is this cemetery has been neglected, ignored, vandalized, eroded, abused and I can testify that very few people care about it.

Stillborn burials were sometimes placed on top of a prior burial or in a shallower grave. Remember this was a very rural area and was mostly farmland. The village itself just had a few little shops but they were way East of here. This was surrounded by farmland and trees so anyone could actually come here and bury a body and probably not be questioned. Of course with time as the area farms were sub-divided that changed. But still people have their drunken doings here and as a caretaker for the church I end up picking up their whiskey bottles and condoms. And as crowded as it is now few calls are made to the police. When I called the police from there once no police came and I gave up after an hour.

Also consider that many perhaps hundreds stillborns and newborns graves were and are even today rarely marked. Many were buried on top of regular already used lots. Very few of these were noted on any existing grave stone. Even now many families have baby graves without markers. Consider that the older graves were most often not marked by stones at all and that the older part of these cemeteries may have been considered full by 1945 and many families had to buy lots elsewhere.

Consider that the “back” of the cemetery many babies & paupers and possible secretives could have been buried. Before that anyone could bury, in reality, wherever they pleased when no one was around. There were many shrubs and trees in the back and it was probably possible to bury without being noticed. A small wagon could be pulled out of sight at the back. Recall this was a rural area until WWII.

Families who suffered stillborn or baby deaths did not usually want a big funeral or a stone as there was a stigma about this. The family home served as the funeral home and most families just buried the remains in the cemetery quickly and privately and did not want a marker to remind them of a stillborn or sickly often unnamed baby which would prolong the sorrow of the already guilt ridden grief stricken mother.

St Clement with good records shows 1.5-2 children buried for each adult with only about 6% of child deaths registered at the county. Using that rate suggests the possibility that there could be as many as 1500 babies and children buried there. County Death records for Warren indicate 50% of the recorded deaths were children prior to WWI but when you add in the non registered ones you get the 1.5 – 2 figure which translates into 100-200%. Remember more children than adults died in the old days and many did not make it to age 21.

Add another possibly few hundred or so adults without markers and you have the cemetery up to capacity. As we have been told by the oldsters many times that the cemetery is full. The above makes mathematical sense. But no one alive now knows for sure. Additional collection of family records will give us just a few. Also the infant mortality rate back then was very high approximately 200 per 1000 per annum.

Many other old cemeteries have hundreds of now unmarked graves many of which are children. Less than 6% were even registered and considering the actual rate per the sister cemetery which is much higher, and also considering the mortality rate there are hundreds of additional unmarked burials.

Researchers have done the math of all of the above and say that there is high probability that hundreds of children and many adults are buried in St Clement and Warren Union Cemeteries without markers..

We should at least recognize the possibility of this.

In fact it is much more likely that there are as many unmarked graves as now marked graves in the old sections. This is true of many older cemeteries. Remember this is not a commercial cemetery like Forest Lawn or Detroit Memorial where records have been maintained and burial practices standardized.

The population of Warren Township was 249 in 1837, 337 in 1840, and 421 in 1845. In 1850 700-750. There was even quicker growth as population figures show. 997 in 1854, 1335 in 1860, 1468 in 1864, 1938 in 1870, 2214 in 1874, 2401 in 1880, 2384 in 1884, 2423 in 1890, 2592 in 1894. 1904 population of Warren Township was 2498.

Notes

Milk pasteurization, first adopted in Chicago in 1908, contributed to the control of milkborne diseases (e.g., gastrointestinal infections) from contaminated milk supplies.

The discovery and widespread use of antimicrobial agents (e.g., sulfonamide in 1937 and penicillin in the 1940s) and the development of fluid and electrolyte replacement therapy and safe blood transfusions accelerated the declines in infant mortality; from 1930 through 1949, mortality rates declined 52% (4). The percentage decline in postneonatal (age 28-364 days) mortality (66%) was greater than the decline in neonatal (age 0-27 days) mortality (40%).

Maternal mortality rates were highest in this century during 1900-1930 Most births occurred at home with the assistance of midwives or general practitioners. Inappropriate and excessive surgical and obstetric interventions (e.g., induction of labor, use of forceps, episiotomy, and cesarean deliveries) were common and increased during the 1920s. Deliveries, including some surgical interventions, were performed without following the principles of asepsis. As a result, 40% of maternal deaths were caused by sepsis (half following delivery and half associated with illegally induced abortion) with the remaining deaths primarily attributed to hemorrhage and toxemia (2). I stopped copying records at 1942 because modern records are now available from this point from the county clerk and from the St Clemens office.

Who may possibly also be buried in St Clement Cemetery?

It is the early days prior to the 1940s which are most troublesome in identifying who is buried at St Slement. In looking at the county death records we can see those who lived in Warren Township all of which is in the area served then by St Clement. Families in this area are at higher possibility of being buried at St Clement than residents of other townships. At least we have a snapshot of the local deaths for this area.

It is highly likely that some these are actually buried in St Clement Cemetery.

There were certain families who lived in the area of this local cemetery many of which attended the local churches in the immediate area. The reason was it was close and the churches were here and it was the custom. When this cemetery started to get filled up, then people sought graves elsewhere. But that was sometime probably near the end of the 1930s. Here below are the family names of very local families who for the most part lived nearby with the high probability of having babies, children (more children died than adults) and adult family members.

This is a tentative list as I am working on this study part time. Remember many of these early families did not place an engraved marker. Many of these has stillborns infants and children die and did not place a marker on their grave.
